Contents

Dániel Bodonyi
Pathways of Desire [1]
The Appearance of an Amorous “I” in Shakespeare’s Procreation Sonnets

János Barcsák
Creativity, Singularity, Ethics in Pope’s Essay on Criticism [28]

György Fogarasi
Teletrauma [62]
Distance in Burke’s Philosophical Enquiry

G. St. John Stott
Conduct Books and Pride and Prejudice [88]

Irina I. Simonova Strout
The Exploration of Female Identity [107]
in the Father-Daughter Dynamic in Caroline Bowles’s Poetry

Lorene M. Birden
Saki as Dauphin of the Wildean Witticism [117]

Ewa Macura-Nnamdi
Of Women and Decadence [137]
Travel, Pleasure and Waste in Ella D’Arcy’s “The Pleasure-Pilgrim”

Hannah Swamidoss
“You’re So Yeller” [161]
Identity, Land, and the Third-Culture Subject in Frances Hodgson Burnett’s The Secret Garden

Márta Asztalos
Family Romances in William Faulkner’s Absalom, Absalom! [181]

Tamás Tukacs
Memory, War and Trauma in Late Modernism [207]
Henry Green’s Caught
Antonio Sanna

Samara Anne Cahill

[245] An Untidy Finish Atonement as Political Gothic

Éva Pataki

[264] On the Move The Tourist and the Flâneur in Nirpal Singh Dhaliwal’s Tourism

Interview

Boldizsár Fejérvári

[279] From Fake Lit to the Value of Real Nightingales An Interview with Nick Groom

Book Reviews

Bálint Gárdos on

Zsuzsanna Váradi-Kalmár on

[307] Travel: A Literary History by Peter Whitfield

Zsuzsanna Csífa on

[313] Does It Really Mean That? Interpreting the Literary Ambiguous edited by Kathleen Dubus and Janka Kaľáková

Norbert Gyuris on

[319] Liminality in Fantastic Fiction by Sándor Klapcsik