

Contents

Editorial note	vii
Katalin Balogné Bérces Connected speech phenomena in Strict CV phonology	1
Réka Benczes Analysing exocentric compounds in English: a case for creativity	11
Gergely Bottyán On conditional if-sentences	19
Csaba Csides Farewell to strict directionality: evidence from English	29
Tamás Eitler Late Middle English syntactic variation and change: towards an integrated model of accommodation in social networks	49
Miklós Gáspár Topic universality in OT inputs	60
Dániel Huber Towards a typology of velar processes	74
Zoltán Kiss Markedness, graduality and closedness in phonotactics—a phonetically grounded approach	85
László Kristó Linguistic reconstruction: methods vs. interpretations	111
Lajos Marosán What is in a function	121
Mark Newson Deforestation in syntax	135
Attila Starčević Absolute phonological ungrammaticality in Croatian	149
Balázs Surányi Head movement qua Root Merger	167
Péter Szigetvári To branch or not to branch?	184
László Varga Once more on the melodic segmentation of Hungarian utterances	192
Cumulative contents of previous volumes	202